Market Value of Net Position

Analysis of Recent Investment Returns

Second Quarter 2022

The following discussion presents comparative data for DERP's Investment Returns for the most-recent Quarterly, 12-Month, Three-Year, and Five-Year Periods. Analysis and highlights of portfolio performance are presented below. All figures are net of fees.

The DERP portfolio lost 6.0% in the second quarter, bringing our year-to-date loss to 7.6% and our trailing 12 months to a loss of 1.6%. The same major themes present in the first quarter continued to cause large disruptions in the global economy and capital markets. The Russia/Ukraine war, China COVID-19 lockdowns, inflation, and central bank tightening all remained significant detractors for most financial assets. The US stock market experienced one of its worst starts to a year ever, and the domestic bond market, generally a haven during periods of equity turmoil, also experienced historically large losses as interest rates rose. During the quarter, domestic equities fell 16.7%, non-US equities fell 14.5%, and the broad bond market declined 4.7%. Despite the magnitude and breadth of losses in stocks and bonds, real estate and energy were of great benefit in moderating the DERP portfolio results, as was a relative underweight to public equity.

Compared to benchmarks, our loss of 6.0% for the quarter was better than the aggregate fund policy index decline of 7.0, and significantly ahead of the 8.6% median drop experienced by large public pension plans. The comparison over the last 12 months is even more favorable, with the DERP portfolio return of -1.6% much better than the -4.3% loss of our blended benchmark and far smaller than the -7.4% of our peers. Nonetheless, the recent losses have had a large negative impact in the trailing 3-year and 5-year periods, where our returns of 6.5% are in line with both our fund policy index and the results achieved by our peers.

Portfolio Analysis

The domestic equity portfolio was hard hit during the quarter, declining 17.4% and faring slightly worse than the overall market decline of 16.7%. Value held up slightly better than growth, but all sectors were negative.

The international equity portfolio declined by 13.7%. As with domestic stocks, value fared better than growth, but not enough to make a difference, as our results trailed the benchmark loss of 13.4%. Somewhat unusually, emerging markets lost marginally less than developed markets.

Fixed income continued to decline as the market priced in higher rates and inflation. Our moves to further reduce interest rate exposure came too late to avoid losses, but the portfolio is positioned to fare well in the expected rising interest rate environment.

Real estate continued to advance as property prices rose and rents and occupancy remained healthy. Softness in certain office and retail properties continue to drag on our performance, but overall results have been a major source of support.

The alternatives portfolio was the other source of positive returns in the quarter, advancing 3.2%. In a repeat of first quarter, energy positions did quite well, but private equity and infrastructure were relatively flat, muting gains in the overall category.

To date our losses have been modest and manageable, and we are prepared and able to withstand further difficulty in the capital markets. Liquidity is strong, and the portfolio is situated well for rising rates, high inflation, and an eventual recovery in the equity markets. We expect to emerge in a position of relative strength ready to play offense as conditions permit.
