Analysis of Recent Investment Returns

Third Quarter 2023

The following discussion presents comparative data for DERP's Investment Returns for the most-recent Quarterly, 12-Month, 5-Year, and 10-Year Periods. Analysis and highlights of portfolio performance are presented below. All figures are net of fees.

The DERP portfolio gained 4.9% in the fourth quarter, as global equity markets posted strong results. Inflation continued its generally downward trend and investors began to anticipate lower interest rates. Meanwhile, economic activity remained healthy. Stock markets around the world rose as a result.

For the full calendar year, the fund returned 9.6%, well above our 7.0% assumed rate of return. However, real estate and private equity fared poorly in 2023, and DERP's significant allocation to these asset classes were drags on performance. Consequently, our returns were behind the median large public plan return of 11.7%. For the trailing 5-Year period, the annual compounded return is 7.4%, but lags the fund policy index return of 8.2% and the median large public plan return of 8.3%. For the 10-year period, the DERP portfolio return stands at 6.0%, behind the 6.4% return of our blended benchmark and our peers.

Quarterly Portfolio Analysis

The DERP domestic equity portfolio gained 12.2% in the fourth quarter and bringing the results for the year to 29.4%. Much attention has been paid to the so-called Magnificent Seven stocks, the mega sized American technology stocks whose valuations have reached lofty levels. While the DERP portfolio participated in the good performance of these securities, our results were favorable across the broad portfolio as well. Active management contributed 3.4% more than the passive Russell 3000 return for the year.

Our non-US equities rose 10.4% for the quarter and ended the year up 19.5%. As with domestic stocks, active management was a significant source of added value, beating the blended benchmark by 4.3% for the year. Emerging markets returns were particularly strong for the quarter and year.

Fixed income had a gain of 2.9% for the quarter and finished the year with a gain of 5.5% despite rate volatility during the year.

Real estate continued to be a source of losses, falling another 5.5% for the quarter and ending the year with a 13.1% loss. Property values appear to have repriced sufficiently for yields to be competitive in the current interest rate environment, particularly if rates are stable or declining. The cost and availability of debt remain limiting factors in new construction, which should provide a level of support for existing properties. With the exception of office space, most of the valuation pressures seem to have subsided.

Natural resources finished the year strong, with a 10.1% return for the quarter and 7.0% for the year. We remain optimistic regarding cash flows from energy investments, which should enable large distributions during the upcoming year.

Our private equity positions fell 4.5% in the final quarter, contributing to a loss of 5.5% for the year. Stalled merger and acquisition activity, few initial public offerings, and reduced availability of lender and investor capital all exerted valuation pressures. There are signs of an improving environment, however.

Infrastructure rose 2.4% in the fourth quarter and ended the year up 10.9%.

Our hedge fund portfolio gained 1.0% for the quarter and 5.4% for the year, delivering fixed income levels of return as designed.

Overall, it was a strong year for the portfolio. Equity prices are not cheap, but with the exception of the Magnificent Seven, not excessive either. Moreover, there is reason to think the private equity and real estate portfolios are poised for better days. We were active in harvesting gains and redeploying proceeds into underappreciated asset classes, and feel comfortable with the positioning heading into the new year.
